2. I am studying general artificial cognition because I want to learn about the new advances in generally capable agents and produce a homebrewed model in order to help my reader understand the very attractive prospect of general AI that does not have to be retrained for separate tasks.